LITANY

I remember a man who knew he was going to die: who gathered with his friends and spoke to them about what he really believed, who wanted them to remember and to keep his work alive.

I, too, remember.

The ranking priests bound him and turned him over to Pilate, the roman governor.

I remember.

Then Pilate had him flogged and turned him over to be crucified. Now, some women were observing this from a distance.

(All Together)

The father has given him and he is giving his all.

Wake Forest School of Divinity

Seven Last Words

Lizbeth Esquivel is a dual-degree master's student at Wake Forest University, with a double concentration in health and interfaith. I am a lover of God, Latina, daughter, dog mom, over-comer, advocate, and non-denominational believer. I am very honored and grateful for the opportunity to participate in this special Good Friday service. Thank you for your hospitality. Blessings.

Raymond O'Pharrow is from Kinston, North Carolina and works on congregational capacity-building. His research interests are the intersections of religion, race, politics and economics.

Minister Maya L. McCoy Womanist Theologian, Associate Minister at the historic, Red Bank Baptist Church, is a native daughter of Winston-Salem, North Carolina. She is a graduate of Winston-Salem State University, with a Bachelor of Science in Biology and Chemistry, and will be completing her Master of Divinity from Wake Forest University in May. Minister McCoy is the proud mother of three children, Aria Victoria, Aerin Melanie, and Xavier Copeland.

Paul M. Freeman is a native of Winston-Salem, belonging to the United Methodist tradition. He is a graduate of Greensboro College, majoring in Civil Rights and Southern history. He has been an interning chaplain at Greensboro College for the past 2 years and will continue the call to chaplaincy upon his graduation in May of 2022.

Grace McMullen (MDiv '22) grew up as a cradle Presbyterian in central Florida, and her passion for art, people, and faith has led her to explore pursuits as varied as printmaking, community organizing, farming, and finally, Divinity School! Wake Div has given her a chance to weave her varied experiences and interests into a cohesive story. After graduation, she hopes to continue cultivating spiritual community and making art in North Carolina.

Aundreya Kailin Shepherd is a third-year student of Divinity at Wake Forest School of Divinity. She enjoys her work as a youth minister at Peace Haven Baptist Church and is looking forward to her ordination in the CBF tradition. An Appalachian native of WNC, Aundreya is looking forward to returning to the mountains with her Great Pyrenees, Fiona Dae.

Joshuah Brian Campbell is a singer, composer, songwriter, ministry worker and actor from Cheraw, South Carolina. He finished a master of divinity at Union Theological Seminary (NYC) in May 2021, where he did work in Hebrew and Greek translation, Christian/faith education, biblical interpretation, and Black religious studies. Counting his childhood choir directors among his most important musical teachers, Joshuah currently serves the student population at Wake Forest University School of Divinity as Director of Music and Arts and Director of the University Gospel Choir.
